ABSTRACT

This booklet contains a list of institutions of higher learning in the United States and Canada which teach Italian. Italian is taught, according to the booklet, in 383 colleges and universities in the United States (including 28 community or junior colleges), and in 15 colleges and universities in Canada. Other information includes the number of undergraduate and graduate students, whether or not extracurricular activities exist in connection with the various programs, and the names of faculty members. Additional statistical data are provided in the introduction. (SK)

THE TEACHING OF ITALIAN IN INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER LEARNING IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

FL 004 178

686 Park Avenue New York

NEW YORK., FEBRUARY 1970

The Istituto Italiano di Cultura, as the Italian government's cultural agency, is interested, for obvious reasons, in the teaching of the Italian language in the United States.

In order to furnish interested persons (university, college and secondary-school administrators and teachers, Americans of Italian origin and other Americans concerned with Italian culture) a complete picture of the situation and a basis for future analysis, we sent out in May 1969 a letter and questionnaire to the heads of modern language departments listed in September 1968 by the PMLA (Publications of the Modern Language Association of America). 1570 such letters and questionnaires were sent out - 1031 to senior colleges and universities, 519 to junior and community colleges and 20 to Canadian colleges and universities having connections with the Modern Language Association. By the autumn of 1969 not all the answers were in, even from some places where we knew that Italian was taught and it was necessary to write follow-up letters and make personal telephone calls to deans and professors in order to obtain them. Our statistical findings reflect, in a majority of cases, the situation existing during the second half of the academic year 1968-69 and, to a lesser degree, during the first ha[illegible]f 1969-70 Statistically speaking, there are some cases of uncertainty when we received two sets of answers, at a brief interval, from the same institution; in these cases we took our figures from the more recent answers. In general we may say that, since we have no reason to doubt the accuracy of the answers received and since we cannot make an on-the-spot investigation we have accepted the figures sent us. We received a total of 688 sets of answers (of which 305 indicated the absence of Italian studies) and it is on these that we base our statistics.

Italian is taught in 383 colleges and universities in the United States (including 28 junior or community colleges) and in 15 colleges and universities in Canada.
122 colleges and universities in the United States offer four-year courses leading to a B.A. degree; of these 35 confer an M.A. and 23 a Ph.D. degree. In Canada the equivalent numbers are 7, 3 and 2 The total number of United States students registered in Italian courses is 29,761 of whom 29,132 are undergraduates; 17,562 in the first year, 7,289 in the second year, 2,857 in the third year and 1,424 in the fourth year-and 629 are graduates. Among the undergraduates 644 have Italian for a major and 734 for a minor subject; among the graduates 229 are studying for an M.A. degree and 209 for a Ph.D.

In Canada the total number of registered undergraduate students is 2,055 - 1,122 in the first year, 555 in the second year, 237 in the third year, 92 in the fourth year. Registered graduate students [illegible]re 49. Of the undergraduates 216 have Italian for a major and 54 for a minor. Of the graduates 32 are studying for an M.A. and 13 for a Ph.D.

The total number of teachers in United States universities is 749, in Canadian universities 43. We must note, however, that quite a few institutions did not list their part-time teachers or student-teachers.

In 149 institutions (38.9% of the total) there are "Italian clubs" and in 49 (12.7%) there are film and lecture programs, "Italian dining-room tables" etc.

138 institutions (36%) have good collections of Italian books, the best being at Columbia, Harvard, Illinois, the State University of New York (Buffalo and Geneseo), North Carolina, Ohio State, Princeton and Rutgers.

161 institutions (42%) receive 10 or less Italian periodicals; 34 (c. 8.8%) receive more than 10. Those reporting excellent periodical collections are Harvard (over 500), Pennsylvania (250), Wayne State (114), Rutgers (100), Toronto (55), McGill (50). Others report good collections but give no figures.

61 institutions (15.9%) have academic programs in Italy either on their own or in cooperation with others or else they organize student groups that take summer courses offered by Italian universities or cultural organizations.

36 institutions (c. 9.3%) have visiting professors from Italy 13 (c. 3.3%) exchange students with Italian universities.

Italian is taught in institutions of higher learning of every one of the United States except Alaska. States which have over 1000 students registered for Italian are New York (58 institutions and 6,912 students), California (44 institutions and 5,271 students), New Jersey (17 institutions and 1,923 students), Massachusetts (22 institutions and 1,729 students), Illinois (16 institutions and 1,365 students), Wisconsin (6 institutions and 1,359 students), Ohio (14 institutions and 1,174 students), Pennsylvania (27 institutions and 1,096 students), Connecticut (16 institutions and 1,089 students), Texas (13 institutions and 1018 students). The individual institutions with the greatest numbers of students are:

Rutgers University 1009 students (903 undergraduates, 106 graduates); University of Wisconsin at Madison 998 (973 undergraduates, 25 graduates); University of California at Los Angeles 981 (955 undergraduates, 26 graduates); University of California at Berkeley 599 (573 undergraduates, 26 graduates); Queens College of the City U. of N.Y. New York 595 (570 undergraduates, 25 graduates); Hunter College of the City U. of N.Y. New York 499 undergraduates; University of Texas, 392 undergraduates; University of Maryland, 356 undergraduates; University of Minnesota, 356 undergraduates; Brooklyn College of the City U. of N.Y. New York, 350 undergraduates; Herbert H. Lehman College of the City U. of N.Y. New York, 235 undergraduates; University of California at Santa Barbara, 324 un*dergraduates: University of Colorado, 313 (307 undergraduates, 6 graduates); Ohio State University, 252 undergraduates; Gonzaga University, Spokane Washington, 250 undergraduates; University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, 250 undergraduates; Indiana University 247 (230 undergraduates, 17 graduates); Long Island University, 240 undergraduates; University of Arizona, 235 undergraduates; * Staten Island Community College, of the City U. of N.Y. New York, 220 undergraduates.*

Canada - University of Toronto, 610 (591 undergraduates, 19 graduates); McGill University, Montreal, 580 (465 undergraduates, 15 graduates).

Universities which confer a Ph.D. in Italian:
Boston College; University of California at Berkeley; University of California at Los Angeles; Catholic University of America; University of Colorado; Columbia University; University of Connecticut; Cornell University; Georgetoun University; Harvard University; University of Illinois; Indiana University; The Johns Hopkins University; University of Michigan; Middlebury College; State University of New York at Albany; New York University of New York; University of North Carolina; Ohio State Univrrsity; University of Oregon; Rutgers University; University of Wisconsin; Yale University.
Canada:
University of British Columbia - Vancouver 8 - ; McGill University - Montreal 2; University of Toronto - Toronto 5.

The total numbers that we give are less than those actually existent, since we know that Italian is taught in some institutions from which we could obtain no answers to our questionnaire. They correspond, generally speaking, to the figures of the Modern Language Association (PMLA, September 1968), to those of Julia Kant in Foreign Language Annals of December 1969, those of Prof. Striano to be published by the Italian Culture Council and those collected by Prof. Remigio Pane, president of the American Association of Teachers of Italian.

On the basis of comparisons made by Julia Kant with other modern language studies for 1968, Italian holds fifth place (30,359 students), after French (388,096 students), Spanish (364,870 students), German (216,263 students), and Russian (40,696 students). However figures covering the last ten years indicates that of all these languages Italian has registered the greatest proportional increase in students. The number of students was 11,142 in 1960; 16,874 in 1963; 22,920 in 1965; 30,359 in 1968; 29,761 in 1969/1970.

In order to enrich and complete the present survey, the Istituto Italiano di Cultura intends to reprint it in an updated version every two years and to bring out, during 1970, an alphabetic list of teachers of Italian and, at a later date, a description of the courses in Italian language and literature offered at the various colleges and universities.

We cordially thank the administrative officers and the professors whose kind cooperation has made our survey possible, in particular Prof. Remigio Pane, who from the beginning gave us the benefit of his precious advice. We shall be grateful for any indications of errors and omissions and for any new figures. We may end by saying that many institutions where Italian is not now taught have expressed the wish to add it to their curriculum in the near future.

LIST OF UNIVERSITIES

Notes.

In the list, institutions marked with an asterisk are Junior or Community Colleges.

Institutions whose answers to our questionnaire came too late for publication are listed at the end, separately.

Names and ranks of members of the teaching staff are listed in the style and order in which they were given in the answers to our questionnaire.
